The Intersect Group Drives Growth With Enhanced Business Development Capabilities
Adds Four Sales Executives

ATLANTA – April 2, 2008 – The Intersect Group, the premier provider of finance & accounting and information technology services to Atlanta companies, today announced it has added four sales executives to its business development team to drive growth and meet increasing demand.

Bill Meagher was named director of business development services, with a focus on finance & accounting consulting and staff augmentation. Scott Graves was named director of business development services, with a focus on IT consulting services and staff augmentation; and Adam Barraclough and Britt Leightman were named business development managers, with a focus on IT staff augmentation.

“Each of these professionals brings exceptional experience that will enable The Intersect Group’s clients to benefit from our range of strategic, management and staffing capabilities,” said The Intersect Group’s Dan Duffy, IT partner.

“These new team members are committed to helping our clients address their most critical business issues,” added The Intersect Group’s Scott Meyerhoff, F&A partner. “Whether companies have urgent needs or are looking for long-term transformation, these professionals will help assure their goals are met.”

The Intersect Group’s business development team seeks opportunities with companies needing staff augmentation, consulting, and transaction advisory services. In addition, the team works to match IT and F&A professionals with companies in need of staff augmentation.
