Suniva Focuses on the Business of Manufacturing Solar Cells: Outsources Accounting Operations to The Intersect Group
Firm Assists in $50 Million Capital Raise

ATLANTA – February 6, 2008 – The Intersect Group, the premier provider of finance & accounting and information technology services to Atlanta companies, today announced its role in managing Suniva’s accounting and finance operations through an outsourcing arrangement. Suniva was formed by Dr Ajeet Rohatgi of the Georgia Institute of Technology’s University Center for Excellence in Photovoltaics (UCEP) and is focused on the mass production of high efficiency, low cost crystalline silicon solar cells.

The Intersect Group assumed F&A leadership on behalf of Suniva, with responsibility for establishing, staffing and directing all of Suniva’s payroll, benefits, general ledger, accounting systems, commercial insurance, reporting and related functions. Additionally, the interim CFO placed by The Intersect Group helped Suniva create the financial models and presentations necessary for the capital raise as well as provided real-time guidance based on significant capital markets’ experience. These services contributed to the process that allowed Suniva to successfully complete its $50 million capital raise.

Suniva CEO John Baumstark said, “I’ve relied on The Intersect Group for all our accounting needs as well as for their high level of technical competency with respect to capital markets. Our capital raise was successful in significant part because of the trust we place in this important partnership and the experienced resources that assisted us.”

Suniva expects to scale quickly and grow exponentially. Its patented process allows production of solar cells with superior performance and efficiency while reducing production time and cost. With the anticipated opening of multiple production facilities, Suniva plans to begin manufacturing these cells by the fourth quarter of 2008.

“The Intersect Group is more than pleased to be part of Suniva’s success,” said Managing Partner Scott Meyerhoff. “It’s satisfying to think we had a hand in helping this aggressive, renewable energy company advance toward creating significant shareholder value and monetizing its patent portfolio.”

About Suniva

Atlanta-based Suniva develops, manufactures and markets high-value, high-efficiency silicon photovoltaic (PV) cells for clean, earth-friendly power generation. The world-class team has decades of PV industry experience and a unique development approach that enables the delivery of leading-edge solar cell performance while dramatically cutting the cost of PV adoption throughout the value chain. Suniva has a primary goal of achieving grid parity with its silicon crystalline cells. Its vision is to drive mass adoption of silicon solar technology which has significant economic, social and environmental benefits. For more information, visit www.suniva.com.
